RUSSIA WAR TO CHURCHILL SALONIKA FALLS TO GERMAN FORCES

Report Nazis Are Near Junction With Italians In Albania

Other German Forces Occupy Skopje At the Head of Vitar Vardar Valley—British Army Not Yet In Action

By BEN AMES

ATHENS, April 9.—(AP)—Greece today accepted stoically the fall of Salonika and Macedonia to German forces, while a British military spokesman expressed high confidence in the ability of Britain's powerful expeditionary force to meet any eventuality when it goes into action.

This spokesman confirmed earlier reports that seasoned British troops of the Army of the Nile have not yet gone into action against the Germans.

ATHENS, Greece, April 9.—(AP)—Royal Air Force bombers blasted German tanks and motor convoys repeatedly yesterday in vigorous assaults upon German invaders in Greece and Yugoslavia, the R. A. F. command announced today.

BERNE, Switzerland, April 9.—(AP)—Salonika fell to the Nazis today and Greek forces cut off east of the port were reported to have surrendered.

The German forces fighting westward over mountain terrain were said to be within 15 miles of a junction with the Italian forces in Albania.

The Italian forces in Albania, which had been fighting in the mountainous region, had not yet gone into action, it was said. The German forces drove across Yugoslavia in occupy Skopje, and from the head of the Vitar Vardar valley some 50 miles from the Bulgarian border, and went on to launch a fierce assault on Kalamak Pass.

The Yugoslav high command said its forces had inflicted "serious losses" on the advancing German and were "battling fiercely" against their drive toward Albania to join Italian forces there.

A British military spokesman here said "we have no indication that our troops have yet established contact with the enemy, nor is there indication when that contact will be effected."

This was contradicted by Stefani, Italian news and propaganda agency, which claimed the German had broken through Aegleion and New Zealand troops in the Struma Valley.

Greatest Offensive Of War Is Directed At Kiel By British

Great German Submarine and Naval Base Smashed In Second Consecutive Night Attack By R.A.F.

By NED RUSSEL

LONDON, April 9.—(BUP)—British bombing planes, engaged on what appeared to be their biggest offensive of the war, rained death and destruction on Germany's great Kiel submarine and naval base during the night in the second consecutive night attack, the air ministry said today.

It was asserted that the results were even more impressive than those of the previous night in that what was up to 100 bombs were dropped on the base.

At the battle end of the Kiel canal, British planes bombed the German naval base at Rendsburg and the main base at Kiel, and the main base at Kiel.

Help Boost The Fund

There should be a full house at the Arena tonight, when a horse show and performance will be staged. As part of an official wind-up to the Spring Show. This is the only evening program offered in connection with the Show, and the attendance will in some measure reflect the public interest aroused by that event. The bill will be made up entirely of entertainment features, designed to please those who like to see horses in action, which military units march past, and enjoy contests of the fun-provoking type.

The object of course is serious and important. Proceeds of the evening will go to the War Services Fund. That of itself should give a good turnout. For the benefit of the village of Bahaw has set a pace which challenges every other community in the province in show what it can do. In that village, with a population of 350, subscriptions to the Fund total $450, substantially more than a dollar per head. That splendid record may not be equalled in other centres, but it must inspire them to make up their full quotas and to give it quickly. Edmonton people will have a chance to give their Fund a good boost tonight.

No Injustice To Ontario

Ontario members of parliament and newspapers object to the Dominion paying a bonus to western farmers who want wheat to be grown again. They say, a subsidizing the western farmer, and keep dairy cattle, and to thereby come into competition with Ontario farmers in important branches of the food supply.

These objections overlook one very pertinent fact—that the Dominion is paying half the freight on course grains which Ontario farmers produce from the prairie provinces. That balances the bonus, and gives the Ontario farmer a compensating offset to the advantage given to other free grain. The Ontario farmer will remain cheap in the west they will remain cheap in Ontario also. If it is profitable for western farmers to raise hogs and milk cows because of the bonus, the Ontario farmer will have the same opportunity.

And in two important items at least of concern to the cities there is no danger that the market will be swamped. Britain has a standing order for all the cheese Canada is able to produce of standard quality. Britain is also clearing for 450,000 pounds of Canadian bacon this year, instead of 350,000 pounds in the last year.

Britain also wants more powdered Canadian milk than it has been getting. As for butter, supplies in Canada ran low last winter, and the winter wheat crop is to be set by law to prevent the prices becoming prohibitive.

In these circumstances, the claim that the bonus given to western farmers will hurt Ontario farmers is not true. That it can injure the Ontario farmer is nonsense.

Frightfulness As Usual

The Nazis opened their attack on Greece in the traditional way. On Sunday they bombed a Greek town, and then they killed women, children and men together. But in the fighting lines, the strictly military results were trifling or nil.

But in the Nazi propaganda, the bombing that night was not wanted. In the "total war" places the killing of civilians is thought to be effective way to cripple a state against for destruction. It produces fear and cheap war. The killers run little risk and few machines.

If the nation behind a hostile army can be terrorized, that is supposed to make the fight less fierce. Why that should be against is one of the mysteries of Nazi psychology. It produces fear and cheap war. The killers run little risk and few machines.

The necessary inference from this initial performance is that "frightfulness" is the order of the day in Germany, as it is in Britain. And now there is the other inference that the day is rapidly coming when German civilians will be treated as non-combatants. Their further has proclaimed by his actions that they are to be considered legitimate targets of attack. No German who is capable of thinking can imagine that the Allies will go on indefinitely striking at only military objectives while German civilians are left alone. Civilians in preference to attacking fortified places.

Mexico Says "No"

The Government of Mexico reports it has been favored with four requests for aid from other of the Latin American states. The O. L. McPherson announced that between $50,000 and $60,000 would be spent on the purchase of military equipment. To which demand the response was that nothing is doing of will be doing in that direction.

This will be particularly welcome news in Berlin and Rome because not many months ago Mexico was regarded as a country which would be practical purposes. It had made a better deal with Germany and if Axis rulers were not operating from Mexico, there would be no danger that supply dumps had yet to be identified. If Mexico will not give back the ship it has sunk, the doctrine may as well also have been.

selves the trouble of calling demands to other countries in this hemisphere.

Even in South America there is no country where Germany and Italy have been stronger. That is why demands for restoration of seized ships has been centered on Mexico. The Mexican Government, it was hoped, would not dare refuse—and thereby invite trouble from German and Italian residents—and from the army of Nazi and Fascist agents by which the country has been invaded.

Credit is coming to the Mexican authorities for rejecting this covert threat. What colleagues in the Axis chief. If the German and Italian residents of Mexico—who number many thousands—do not resent the refusal to surrender the ships, that will be welcome proof to the dictators that they have lost whatever sympathy among these people they may have had.

Officials from Ottawa have gone to Washington to discuss difficulties which might arise if the United States provided Britain with wheat and some other commodities under the lease-lend bill. For Canada is a colossus of interests, while the account is likely to be written off when the times come.

From The News Side Glances - - - - - By Galbraith

By Harold L. Weir

Tremendous moral significance attaches itself to the resumption of Ethiopia and the inevitable restoration of the Emperor Haile Selassie to his throne.

In the first place, it is an act of justice as such, which will increase the confidence of that is possible, in the disinterested aims and purposes of the British policy.

Of course, Ethiopia is a potentially rich country. It has vast undeveloped water-powers and great mineral resources, mainly cotton, gold, copper and coal. It produces some cotton, coffee, sugar-cane and rubber and can be made to produce these valuable commodities in profitable quantities.

Doubtless Great Britain will be granted a preference in the development of these products. And Ethiopia's four-year taste of foreign occupation will have awakened her leaders to the advantages of developing their own resources. Her aid to Ethiopia is a first and foremost an altruistic project.

In the second place, the recovery of Ethiopia is a moral victory for the British for every conquered nation in Europe the eventual freedom from the Axis yoke.

Nations like persons, are prone to accommodate themselves to the inconveniences and humiliations of aggression. They develop a tolerance towards penetration and aggression. And Ethiopia's four-year taste of foreign occupation will have awakened her leaders to the advantages of developing their own resources.

This, of course, is the great danger in France and Belgium. The French and Belgians, these conquered peoples will tend gradually to regard their situation as hopeless and to think of the Axis yoke as a permanent feature of their life.

Aggression always is thrown off, naturally, and the conquered peoples will tend to regard their situation as hopeless and to think of the Axis yoke as a permanent feature of their life.

The recovery of Ethiopian independence is something of an antidote for this lethargy. It will keep the fires of defiance alight among the masses of conquered peoples who otherwise might fall into a dangerous and fruitless despondency.

In the third place, the complete collapse of the Italian empire will have a salutary effect on the minds of those few Italians who have not yet been disillusioned about their own government.

The ultimate test of any political experiment is its fruits. So long as Fascism appeared to expand the frontiers of Italy, even when it was a mere illusion, it had a limited range of our five acres to defend, seems reasonable enough.

But when the moral of the Fascist machine is that the personal sacrifice that was made to secure a powerful empire for the Italian race, it is a machine that has been valued beyond the reality of Italian arms.

The machine has produced nothing durable. It has produced a few years of glory and a few years of shame. It has produced a few years of glory and a few years of shame.

The profound effect of this realization on Mussolini's political attitude can well be imagined.

The travel of Ethiopia after the Italian conquest was consummated in 1935 will have been entirely wasted.

The Emperor Haile Selassie, already an enlightened and humane monarch, will have profited by his exile. He represents a culture that is profound although it is little understood by the world.

His contacts with western civilization, however, will undoubtedly introduce a measure of practical expediency into his methods of government.

Ethiopia is ready now to blossom out into modern civilization.

Indications that trouble may shortly develop in the Pacific area were given in the report that Japan may be the next nation to join the Axis.

Siam, or Thailand, is not important in itself. But its barbers would afford a base from which the Japanese could attack the Malay States, on the Dutch East Indies and on Singapore.

Whether this report is based on fact or on fancy, it is a reflection on the progress of the Axis. It shows that the Axis is not a mere collection of nations, but a force that is growing and that is not to be underestimated.

There is another report, more rarely mentioned, that the Japanese are planning to attack the Philippines. This is a report that is not to be taken lightly.

The report that the Yugoslav army has withdrawn from the German attack on the south in a manner that exposes the Greek front, is a report that is not to be taken lightly.

General Irons' movements in Yugoslavia appear to indicate that the Yugoslav army is not to be taken lightly.
